Research & Development

Electroplating, this is a process to protect steel and other non-ferrous metals with various metals so as to give a better appearance, which does not oxidize in normal atmospheric conditions, has been in practice since ages. Common metals used for coating are Nickel and chromium. Faisal Sanitary Fittings carries the honor of introducing the latest Art of Technology Plasma Ion Plating, Arc source deposition. In this process metal ions are emitted from solid cathodes by electric arc which transverse the surface either by randomly or under the influence of magnetic field. Compared with the traditional electroplating the Arc source Deposition Technology is well known for the best rate to make a high quality film.
